Participants demonstrating their exhibit to the faculty

The Department of Zoology and Genetics Organized “Unveiling Life's Blueprint – Model Exploration”, a cell and molecular Biology themed exhibition for the III and V semester students of Zoology and Genetics. The event provided a platform for the UG participants to showcase their creativity, innovation, and scientific understanding through model presentations. A total of 27 models were exhibited. The participants had a good time explaining the models to the faculty and to their junior students. Ms. Vatsalya Krupa, Associate Professor, Department of Biochemistry and Ms. Mamatha, Associate Professor, Department of Biotechnology were invited to Judge the exhibition. The judges appreciated the efforts and originality displayed by the students in designing the models. The event fostered scientific curiosity and teamwork among the participants, encouraging them to relate theoretical knowledge with practical understanding. Overall, the exhibition was a great success, creating an engaging and interactive learning experience for everyone involved.
